ANDREWS TO RESIGN AS COMMISSIONER

IS WORD FROM WASHINGTON PUBLIC OPINION WILL RULE

Dry Chief's Stand On Statute Is the Same—Enforcement Is Held To Be An Unattainable Goal Until the Public Elects To Accept Prohibition—Futility of Any Treaty On Smuggling Is Voiced.

The Washington Post says Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of prohibition, will tender his resignation when he returns from his European trip, and probably will accompany this act with a statement setting forth his conviction that prohibition never can be enforced in the United States until public opinion is willing to support far more drastic enforcement laws than now are on the statute books.

The determination of General Andrews to step aside and relinquish his present duties has been confided by the general to several of his associates in Washington. He would have resigned before now excepting that arrangements had been entered into with the British government for the anti-smuggling conference in London, and the British understood that General Andrews would make the trip.

Both Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state, and Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, urged General Andrews to go.

Therefore, the general agreed to withhold formal announcement of his resignation until he returned from abroad and meanwhile to do what he could to make the anti-smuggling conference a success.

But it develops now that General Andrews does not expect the negotiations with Great Britain or with any other foreign powers to affect materially the illicit liquor supplies, which will continue to flood the United States. In fact the problem of high-grade liquors smuggled from foreign ships is not a serious factor in the prohibition question. If this supply, by miracle could be shut off entirely the prohibition question would remain virtually as far from settlement as it now is, according to General Andrews.

The fact that General Andrews is known to attach minor importance to the smuggling problem has caused many inquiries as to why he is making his European conferences the last of his official career as presiding director. The explanation of this is that the British extended the invitation and the United States government accepted it, and that international courtesy compelled the meeting of General Andrews with the British officials.

When he appeared as a witness before the sub-committees of the senate committee on judiciary in the wet and dry hearings of liquors from abroad that smuggling of liquors from abroad had ceased to be an important consideration in enforcement.

From the standpoint of General Andrews' program of enforcement, the incident is unfortunate because General Andrews explained at the prohibition hearings that he favored giving to field officers full responsibility and relied on their cooperation with district attorneys in their area. It is clear in this instance that there is not the desired cooperation between Green and McNab.

Camera Used in Measuring Growth of Calves

A photographic method of keeping an accurate record of the growth of calves has been developed by the United States Department of Agriculture at its experimental farm at Beltsville, Maryland. The calves are photographed before a background marked off in six-inch squares with a camera placed on a post set in concrete. Since the positions of the calf and the camera are always the same an accurate growth record is preserved in the successive photographs.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Toledo—Five soldiers from Camp Perry and six civilians arrested in a raid by prohibition agents were held for arraignment charged with violating the prohibition law.

Dayton—Archie McCaleb, negro, Cincinnati, was arrested on a reckless driving charge. Then police discovered 27 quarts of liquor in his automobile. He was fined $500 on the prohibition charge and the traffic violation charge is pending.

Ironton—Three unidentified detectives were charged with beating Charles Stevens in an effort to force him to confess to robbery in warrants sworn out here.

Camp Perry—Governor Donahey complimented officers and men of the 107th Cavalry and the 112th Engineers and the Port Clinton Tank company when he reviewed the troops Friday.

Findlay—Last rites for Dr. Wm. Harris Guyer, for 13 years president of Findlay college will be held on the campus here Sunday afternoon. The body will lie in state Sunday morning in the college chapel. Dr. Guyer died suddenly of heart trouble induced by the heat wave.

Canton.—National Guard Troopers in plain clothes but heavily armed stood guard here early today at the homes of a number of citizens who have been prominent in the hunt for slayers of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, murdered more than a week ago.

The guardsmen are serving under a semi-official arrangement, it was said. Some of the citizens whose homes they guarded received the same warning as the editor—not to put automobiles in their garages at night. Mellett was assassinated at the door of his garage.

A REMINDER OF THE DAYS OF LONG AGO

Advertising Placard of Acker King, Carriage Maker, Brought to Light.

Miss Mame Brown, of East Mound street, has an advertising placard which is a reminder of old times and in this day is quite a curiosity.

The card was found recently back of a picture in her home and is an advertisement of Acker King, carriage maker. It is about ten by fourteen inches in size, on stiff cardboard and is printed in various bright colors and in fancy type and is further embellished with pictures of odd looking vehicles of an almost forgotten age.

This work of the printers' art was made by Clapp, Matthews & Co., Printers Morning Express, Buffalo. Jacob Brown, father of Miss Brown, was a carriage trimmer in the employ of Mr. King on South Court street, this city, in those days called "South Main."

The printed matter on the card is as follows:

"Circleville Carriage factory
"Acker King, manufacturer of carriages, corner South Main and Mill streets, Circleville, Ohio.

"He keeps constantly on hand or will make to order Chariotees, Broughs, Rockaways, Phaetons, Rough and Ready, Prince Alberts, Harrison carriages and buggies of any desired pattern and style of finish.

"The proprietor uses the best stock of every kind and employing only first rate workmen, he can with confidence recommend and warrant all his work. Those in want of anything in his line will please give him a call."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Miss Frances Walling is being delightfully entertained in Pasadena, California, by Miss Anna Thompson, formerly of this city.

Mr. Fred H. Fissell announces the marriage of his daughter, Erma, to Mr. Henry Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mason, of North Court street. The ceremony took place, July 24, at Columbus. After August 1, the happy couple will be at home at 146 Pleasant street, this city.

HELP IN A GOOD CAUSE.

Since Friday's issue of the Union-Herald, several persons who sympathized with G. W. Fellers in the loss of his shop and equipment for making brooms, have handed us money to assist him in replacing what he lost in the fire.

T. C. Gooley, of New Holland, started the good work with an unsolicited contribution of $5 and some others have made gifts to this fund.

If there are any others who feel that it is not only a duty, but a pleasure, to help an unfortunate man who is blind and is working to support himself and wife, their donations will be thankfully received and applied to the intended purpose.

Reduce Fat Slowly

One of the grave mistakes common to overweight persons is to decide suddenly that their superfluous flesh must be removed quickly. Reduction in weight should proceed slowly. It is impossible to maintain health on a drastic reducing program. One cannot expect to take off in two months what it has taken years to put on, and survive the experience in perfect health, says Eileen Bourne, in Liberty.

FIRST AID FOR SHOCK DESCRIBED

Health Service Tells of Various Forms and Gives Treatment.

Washington.—A lesson in first-aid treatment for various forms of shock and the many meanings of the word are defined in a broadcast just sent out by the United States public health service. It is pointed out that a commonly accepted meaning of shock refers to a sudden and violent sensation such as might be produced by a plunge into icy cold water. Or shock may mean a sensation such as is experienced when the mind is suddenly agitated by a startling emotion, as a shock of grief or fear, or of fright at witnessing a grave accident.

The term shock as used by physicians usually refers to graver conditions than those just mentioned, and particularly to that more or less profound prostration of the bodily functions following sudden injuries and after very extensive surgical operations. Electric shock is still another form of this often serious and even dangerous condition.

"In general, shock may be defined as a sudden, vital depression which may be mild in degree or which may be serious, even fatal, in its consequences," says the service. "The severer degrees of shock are dangerous and the condition, even when slight, should always be given prompt attention."

"When a person is suffering from shock, his face is pale and has an anxious expression; the eyelids droop, the eyes are dull and the pupils large; the skin is clammy and covered with cold perspiration; the victim is somewhat stupid in appearance and takes little interest in the things about him. He may suffer from nausea and vomiting. He may answer questions slowly. He may be partly or totally unconscious, or his mind may wander. Usually he is perfectly quiet and will not move unless disturbed. Breathing is shallow and feeble; the pulse is rapid and weak, and may not be perceptible at the wrist."

General Treatment.

"Let us outline briefly the treatment of shock in general. When the condition of shock is observed send for a doctor at once. Pending his arrival place the person in a comfortable position, with his head low, unless there is a fracture of the skull or severe hemorrhage from blood vessels of the head or face. Remove from the patient's mouth all foreign bodies, such as false teeth, tobacco or gum. Wrap him in warm blankets or in warm clothing. Place well-wrapped hot-water bottles around the patient."

"A light hot-water bottle, wrapped in cloth or paper and placed over the heart, is a good stimulant. If he is conscious, give aromatic spirits of ammonia—a teaspoonful in half a glass of water, moderately hot coffee, hot tea or hot water. If the patient is unconscious do not give him anything by the mouth, but pour aromatic spirits of ammonia on a cloth and place it under his nose. This should be tested by the person rendering assistance by holding it under his own nose before giving the treatment to the patient to be on the safe side."

"Although shock is dangerous and commonly follows injuries, it must not be forgotten that the person suffering from shock may require treatment for something still more dangerous; as, for example, severe bleeding, which must be checked."

"We come now to a special form of the condition we are discussing termed electric shock. Electricity causes shock by paralyzing the nerve centers that control breathing or by stopping the regular beat of the heart. The symptoms of electric shocks are sudden loss of consciousness, absence of respiration—or if respiration is present, it is slight and cannot be observed—weak pulse and burns at the point of contact with the conductor of electricity."

"The first thing to do in the treatment of electric shock is to get the patient off the live wire or otherwise break the contact of the electric current as quickly as possible, if this has not been done already."

Extreme Care Necessary.

"One must be extremely careful not to touch the patient or the wire with the bare hands, or otherwise make contact with the electric current. If one has a pair of rubber gloves, or even one rubber glove, the victim may safely be pulled away from the contact with the current, or if there is a switch near, the current may be turned off, but no time should be lost in looking for one."

"Another way to break the current is to take the belt, handkerchief, coat or a piece of dry rope and loop it over the victim's foot or head if he is lying on the wire, and thus pull him off. If an ax is near at hand it may be used to cut the wire, but first one should make sure that the handle is dry or else wrap it with a coat or other non-conducting material before attempting to use it; or one may use a dry board, a dry cloth or a dry rope to pull the wire away from the patient. Do not grasp the wire with the hand even when protected by a dry cloth, as this may be serious."

"As soon as the patient is freed from the wire and removed from danger of further contact with it, artificial respiration should be begun at once."

FEED COWS LIKE HOGS TO MAKE DAIRYING PAY

If the dairyman fed his cows as the hog man feeds his pigs, there would be more money in dairying, according to the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics.

"The hog man interested in getting his pigs to marketable weight in the shortest time and with the least effort and expense has tried ration after ration for his pigs until he is now pretty close to the best ration for accomplishing the result he is after," the Institute states. "For the hog man, the proof of the feed is in the feeding. Contrast this attitude with the attitude of the dairyman. Instead of finding out what a given ration will do with his own cows in his own barns, the dairyman has continued to make up his ration on the test-tube theory of chemical analysis, which has little to do with the amount of milk the cow will give. The dairyman tests out gasoline in his own car, but he feeds his cows on the ration arrived at with pencil and paper."

Is it any wonder that under the standards of our present knowledge the average cow in view of her possibilities is not as good as the average hog?

HANDICAPPED

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe of Illinois, says that probably the worst handicap confronting his office is Governor Len Small's parole and pardon system, according to Sidney Sutherland in an article about crime in Chicago in this week's Liberty. "It takes us two weeks to get the guilty man convicted and it takes the Governor two seconds to sign his name on a pardon blank," State's Attorney Crowe is quoted as saying. "He lets them out as fast as we put them in. In 1923, for example, I put 59 burglars and 97 robbers in Joliet—and Small released 88 burglars and 97 robbers!"

A cool kitchen soothes troubled nerves

The woman who has to spend summer days cooking over a sizzling hot range has plenty of reasons for losing her amiability.

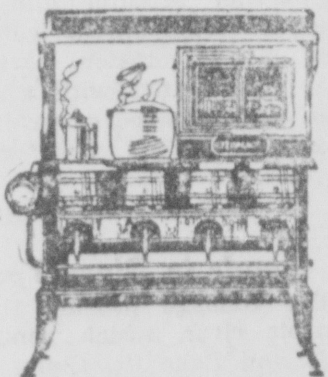

If men had to stand over the heat, they would know why cooking in hot weather makes their wives nervous and irritable. Yet a kitchen need not be so hot in summer.

With a Florence Oil Range the kitchen can be kept cool. The burners deliver the heat only where it is needed—close up under the cooking. The flame is a gas flame. It is not a wick flame such as you see in the ordinary oil lamp or at the end of a candle. The Florence operates at low cost. It is good-looking enough for any kitchen.

Come in and let us show you, with no obligation to yourself, how the Florence can do all your cooking and keep your kitchen cooler and cleaner.

APHIS AFTER BEAN CROP
Local Bugman Finds These Minute Parasites Are Playing Havoc With New Beans.

Ross County's bean crop is threatened by the bean aphid which is appearing for the first time in this county in dangerous numbers, according to the Sears and Nichols Canning company, who state that their 600 acres of beans in the county are being seriously threatened by the pest.

The aphid appears as a very small, dark bug almost black which crawls up the stalk of the bean plant in great numbers and collects on the stems of the plants in clusters. They do not eat the foliage but live by sucking the juice of the plant and therefore, because of the peculiar structure of their mouths can be killed only by the use of special poison dusts and sprays such as nicotine dust and various kinds of liquid sprays.

It is said that this dry, hot weather is especially favorable to the spread of the pest. Pick-away and Fayette counties are hit now by the aphid more severely than Ross county but it is said that local growers must make an effort to protect themselves.—Chillicothe Gazette.

SIEBER ASKS DONAHEY REMOVE CHIEF LENGEL

Toledo, July 22.—Governor Donahey was criticized for failure to remove Chief of Police S. A. Lengel of Canton, as a result of the murder of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, in an address by Joseph B. "The people in November will want to know why honest Vic didn't remove the Canton chief of police and get at the bottom of this miserable affair," Sieber said. "They will also want to know why Vic didn't grant the request of the attorney general for an investigation of the Apple Creek scandal."

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, another candidate, also addressed the club.

London, July 22.—Miss Mary G. Chamberlin of London, has handed her resignation to the board of education after teaching and serving as principal of the grade school here for 55 years without a break.

Miss Chamberlin's record is believed without equal in the state. She was born in London within sight of the present school building and started teaching at the age of 17.

For the past several years she has served as principal of the grade school building and primary department supervisor. She has served under nine superintendents and has taught thousands of pupils, many of them in recent years being grandchildren of her older pupils.

Officials Are Executed to Stabilize CurrencyMoscow, U. S. S. R.—M. Bronsky, a member of the finance ministry, says that as an outgrowth of extraordinary measures taken by the government
the chervonetz, the new Russian gold unit of value, has now been definitely stabilized.M. Bronsky denies that there have been wholesale executions in connection with the stabilization of the new currency. He admits, however, that campaigns against artificial devaluation of the chervonetz have been put down with one energetic stroke. Three important finance ministry officials have been executed and about 100 known speculators deprived of their liberty.SATURDAY NIGHTHigh jinks orchestra plays at C. A.

SHOWING SOME PEPGrasps Boosting Spirit of United States.Dallas.—Dreamy Mexico land of marijuana, is waking up. The newest in intellectual and material things is delightfully blending with the habits and customs which keep Mexico peculiarly its own.The boosting spirit of residents of the United States is one of the things being grasped and used by Mexican citizens with civic pride.Particularly in those areas which are reached by railroads carrying a large portion of the travel from the United States is there a growing reaction to alien influences. Along these lines the traveler sees movies still shown in second-run houses north of the border. He is greeted by street placards announcing baseball games and prize fights, and he meets dodgers dressed in his hands against him to attend.The chamber of commerce has become a red part of Mexican civic life.A typical special train, bound into Mexico, traveling along the west coast, may be taken as an example.
Members of the party are advised that a certain community several hundred miles south plans a reception and the schedule permits a stop.On arrival a Mexican orchestra of stringed instruments greets the tourists. After a concert the guests are conducted to carriages, perhaps rather dilapidated, but able to go. A ride over rough, unpaved streets, which seem to begin nowhere and end abruptly, winding past one-story adobe structures seemingly placed without definite plan, ends at the chamber of commerce.Then comes the official welcome, brief but hearty. The speaker, his words interpreted sentence by sentence, quickly offers greetings and begins typical community boosting. It is good taste for the musicians to break in with an air when, in the director's opinion, the speaker has made an effective point.When this is all over, the guests are escorted to the reception. The population is there, and formality of introduction is waived. Mexican girls, on the whole, are pretty. They are excellent dancers and the music is good.
Usually a community belle gives an interpretation of a Mexican dance.
Then, if she is a "modern," likely as not she will demonstrate the character.When the departing guests return to their train they find the orchestra of stringed instruments on hand. Usually it is late and the airs then played are peculiarly those of Mexico—soft, romantic and touched with the tragedy that rapidly disappearing centuries of peonism has implanted.Young French Mechanic Invents Flying BicycleParis.—A young French mechanic in a factory at Dijon has just invented a bicycle that flies.According to a report received in Paris, the Frenchman had been working on his invention several years and has finally completed successful tests.
The bicycle can be transformed immediately into a very small monoplane and fly to a height of 150 feet. Trials were conducted without mishap and the mechanic intends to present his unique invention to the public at the beginning of August.The successful manufacture of the bicycle in large quantities will make flying within the means of all, in the opinion of the inventor.California Has Increase

nia police departments are becoming more effective in snaring the elusive criminal or the criminal element in the state is materially on the increase,
for the number of arrests on serious charges shows a gain of nearly 5,000 for the fiscal year just ended.One in Every 71 in World Owns Motor CarWashington.—The automobile has invaded every nook of the globe and in such quantity that an owner is to be found in every seventy-first person. On the basis of 1,748,000,000 world population for 1925, this means that more than 24,000,000 persons are automobile owners.
These figures, announced by the Commerce department, revealed that the United States leads with the highest ratio to population—one to every six persons. Hawaii has one to every eleven, and Canada one to thirteen.In the lower ratios is Afghanistan, with one to 1,200,000 persons; Hejaz, with only four cars, or one for every 225,000;
Abyssinia, 1 to 133,333, and China, 1 for every 31,871. The Solomon Islands, with 151,000
persons, has only two automobiles, while Liberia has 54, or one for every 54,259.In 19 of the 59 countries surveyed, at least 90 per cent of the automobiles owned were of American manufacture; in seven,
American-made cars constituted
80 per cent. South America had the greater proportion. European countries showed a much lower ratio.RADIO FANS

Legion(Copy for This Department Applied to the HONOR MATHEWSONEstablishment of a post-ent memorial to the late Christy Mathewson, baseball's greatest hero, to be known as the Christy Mathewson memorial was given the endorsement of the American Legion at a recent meeting of the national executive committee.

The memorial, which will be located at Saranac Lake, N. Y., where "Matty" spent much of his time previous to his death, is trying to regain his health, will be established by his friends in baseball, in the Legion and by others who wish to contribute.The purpose of the memorial is "to perpetuate the name of Christy Mathewson by a fund to be used to aid the sick and needy who come to Saranac Lake for treatment from all states in the Union; and by the establishment of a Mathewson Memorial club house for the use of World War veterans with the aim of improving their physical, intellectual, ethical and social nature."The big leagues will contribute towards the memorial by staging benefit games. On May 28 the first benefit game was played at Braves field Boston, between the Glens and the Braves. A memorial tablet to Mathew-son was unveiled before the game.Matty was an active member of Jackson A. Mathewson post of the Legion at Saranac Lake, which is made up entirely of disabled veterans.
While at Saranac Lake he became greatly interested in the welfare of the disabled and was instrumental in establishing a welfare fund and a veterans' club. The Mathewson memorial will perpetuate these two things in his name.Among the directors of the memorial are John J. McGraw, Judge Kenesaw Landis and Harry C. Wilder, department commander of the Legion
in New York. National Com. John R.
McQuigg of the Legion, is a charter member of the memorial.Asks Funds for Verdun and Liege MemorialsAppeal has been made by National Commander John R. McQuigg of the American Legion to members of the Legion and of the Legion auxiliary for contributions towards the erection at Verdun and Liege of international memorials of the sacrifices and services of the armed forces of all the nations allied together during the World war.These projects were given formal approval by the Legion's national executive committee at a recent meeting.
The committee directed the national commander to call upon Legionnaires and auxiliary members to contribute to the funds for the memorials. Contributions for the two funds are being received by National Treasurer Robert H. Tyndall, national headquarters, the American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.At Verdun will be erected a great ossuary in which will be interred the bones of the unidentified dead of the battle which raged around that crucial point in allied defense. It will commemorate especially the trench of the bayonets near Fort Douaumont.
The ossuary is to consist of a series of chapels, surmounted by a central tower in which a light is to burn forever. The French committee in charge of the project, under the chairmanship of Marshal Petain, has offered to the United States as its part of this international memorial the central tower. Contributions of Legionnaires to the Verdun memorial will be used for its erection. The committee in charge hopes to have the memorial completed so that it may be dedicated in 1927, when the American Legion convention is expected to be held in Paris.At Liege in Belgium the memorial is to take the form of a civic hall,
with representation for each allied country in it.Four Departments Pass
Their Membership QuotaFour departments of the American Legion had surpassed by June 1 their membership quota for the year 1926 as set by the national headquarters of the organization, according to National Adjutant James F. Barton, who pointed out that the Legion is headed for a record membership year.The departments which have passed their quota, in the order of "going over the top," are Florida, Wyoming, Arizona and Idaho."In view of the fact that the membership quotas for the departments have been set considerably in advance of the 1925 membership enrollment, the achievement of the four departments in surpassing their quota months before the end of the year is the more commendable," declared Adjutant Barton.Jobs for VeteransAdvertising Men's post of the Amer-

Honor Thomas Moore
as Patriot and Poet

County Wexford Historical society in Ireland has just erected a tablet on the house in which lived the mother of Thomas Moore, the national poet, and the mayor and corporation of the city associated themselves with the tribute. Moore's mother was Anastasia Codd, and her husband, John Moore, came from Kerry.

"Opinions on Moore have differed, and will continue to differ to the end," said Rev. T. Byrne. "Some hailed the poet as a national idol, while others denounced him as a cockney. In the poet's life were incidents which did not appeal to the Irish patriot. He spent most of his time in England, and was the idol of its aristocratic circles. But under his gay and frivolous nature he had the heart of an Irish patriot. He was an intimate friend of Robert Emmet, and wrote for the republican organ, the Press."

"A religion is a way to be tested by its answers to, a fourfold question: What does it teach about God, about man, about the relation between God and man? Christianity, like any other religion is a distinctive way of living. But this implies that it was have distinctive ideas about God and man and their relation, since human relationships are always affected or determined by these ideas. As its name implies, Christianity is essentially a Faith from and regarding Christ."—Professor Clelland Boyd McAfee, The Christian Conviction.

New Notes on Peas

TEN centuries ago, more or less, a common penance imposed on erring monks was a pilgrimage afoot with peas in their shoes. They paid for their sins with a thousand painful steps. But monkish records go on to tell of one such penitent, sharper than his brothers in affliction, who cooked his peas before he started on his way!

More recently some one still more clever thought of cooking the peas before starting them on their long journey from the fields to the housewife's kitchen. To her, peas have come to mean a great convenience and comfort. Canned peas are already shelled and cooked and she need only add seasoning to her taste and heat them. The expert housewife can always devise a new way of serving peas, even if it is only a matter of adding a sauce or trimming from one of the numerous cans on her shelf.

But a delicious summer dish, suitable as the main dish either for a luncheon or a light dinner, are pea croquettes. The recipe follows:

Pea Croquettes

- 1 can large size peas
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg
- Salt and pepper
- Bread crumbs

Heat the peas in their own liquor, drain and press through sieve. Blend the flour and butter together, add milk and stir until boiling. Season, add yolk of egg, turn on plate to cool. When cold, form in neat croquettes, brush with beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in hot fat. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

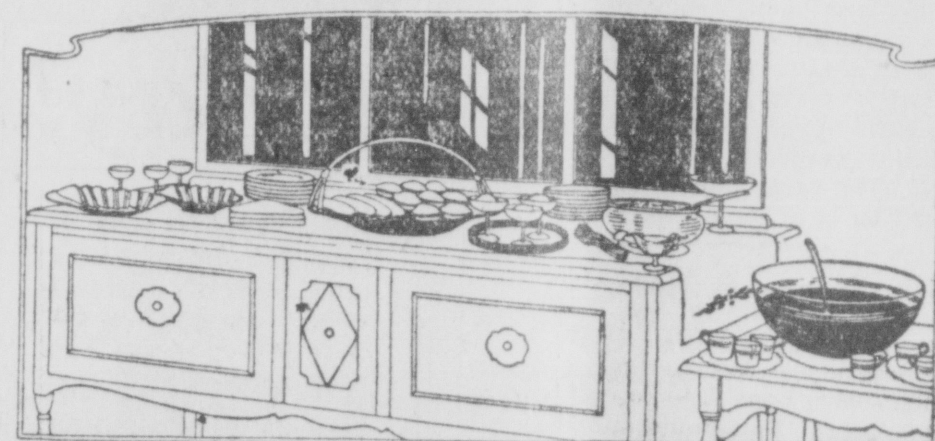

A Dollar Dinner for Four

The daily dinner menu in warm weather is often a problem. Here is one containing foods both nutritious and appetizing. Its total cost is $1.00, and it will serve four people.

Pea Soup
Shrimps Baked with Tomatoes
Corn Sauté Bread and Butter
Shredded Pineapple
Demi Tasse

A GOOD pea soup may be bought for 10 cents a can. Two small cans of shrimps, at 15 cents a can, are required for the casserole dish suggested. A small 9 cent can of tomatoes is sufficient. This dish is prepared as follows: put a layer of bread crumbs into a well buttered casserole, then one of shrimps and another of the solid part of canned tomatoes. Season with a little salt, pepper, butter, and 1 teaspoon sugar. Add alternate layers of crumbs, shrimps, and tomatoes until the dish is full. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter, and brown in moderate oven. A can of corn to sauté in bacon drippings costs about 12 cents at this season. A small loaf of bread costs 10 cents. A can of shredded pineapple may be had for 17 cents. Enough coffee to serve four people, at an average cost of 40 cents a pound, comes to about 4 cents. The total of these food items is 92 cents. 8 cents may be allowed to cover the cost of butter and sugar for the meal.

The Buffet Supper

A COLD buffet supper is a simple and very pleasant way to serve a large group of people who may be gathered on a Sunday or holiday evening. Everything may be prepared in advance, guests take care of their own wants, and the host and hostess are not preoccupied with serving.

When done with the aid of canned foods, the preparation of the supper is very easy. Cold or jellied consommé, easily made from canned soup, is a good first course. The pièce de résistance should be a salad. Lobster is delicious but a choice of tuna or tomato aspic would be wise since some people do not care for the flavor of the shellfish. Canned lobster renders the salad making very simple. Mix with celery and mayonnaise and garnish with watercress. Aspic is delicious made with canned tomatoes. With the salad, small sandwiches of anchovy paste, caviar, jam, or jelly are good, and there might also be relishes such as pickles and olives.

A frozen fruit dessert that is unusually good may be made by packing cans of peaches, pineapple, raspberries, salad, fruit, and, in fact, any canned fruit, into a bucket of ice and salt where it is allowed to stand for three hours. When the cans are taken out, plunge into hot water an instant, punch a hole in the bottom of the can. An improved can opener will take the top off clean, leaving no jagged edges to spoil the frozen fruit. Slice and serve with whipped cream. Honolulu tea is an easily made punch. To two quarts of strong cold tea add the juice of six lemons, a can of crushed pineapple with syrup, one cup maraschino cherries with syrup and additional syrup of two cups sugar boiled for five minutes with one cup water. Chill and serve with cracked ice. These proportions will make twenty cups.

AMUSEMENTS

Two weary looking men walked into a Los Angeles street mission in the City of Angeles several months ago, hardly noticed, for they were but two of a hundred or more who were seeking shelter in Brother Tom's place. Brother Tom is one of those rare men who know how to spend their money and get the best results with it. He is busy saving bodies as well as preaching the salvation of souls.

For several hours, the two strangers mingled with the motley crowd at Brother Tom's. Outside the mission again, they jumped into a Rolls-Royce waiting nearby, and began tearing off the fake beards which hid their identity.

One was Harold Lloyd and the other Ted Wilde, one of his production staff. It was not a lark for Lloyd or Wilde, which led the two to disguise themselves on their visit to Brother Tom's place, but an earnest desire to obtain atmosphere for the comedian's first Paramount release, appropriately titled, "For Heaven's Sake!"

Part of this new Lloyd comedy is laid in a mission in the underworld of a big city, and it was to get local color for this sequence that brought Lloyd to "the other half" of Los Angeles. Several days later, the bespectacled comedian went down again and engaged a number of the characters who frequent the place for the mission scenes in "For Heaven's Sake!" Consequently, even the most captious critic will have no fault to find with the atmosphere in this production, for it is absolutely faithful to the locale.

"For Heaven's Sake" details Lloyd's thrilling and laughable experiences when he starts out to uplift the gangsters and toughs in the slum section of his city. Jobyna Ralston supplies the necessary love interest to plot, while Paul Wiegel, Noah Young, and James Mason are among the prominent supporting players.

The picture, which comes to the Met theater Monday was directed by Sam Taylor from the story by Ted Wilde, John Grey and Clyde Bruckman.

BANK INVESTMENTS

We have seen, in an earlier article, that when your money is deposited in the bank, it can be used in one of three ways—as reserve, to be lent, or to be invested in securities.

Let us consider, therefore, the kinds of securities the bank will buy.

First, they will be safe—that is, the bank will take measures to insure that the bonds or notes purchased will be worth as much in the future as they pay for them. Banks will not buy what are known, in stock market parlance, as speculative issues. They will insist that the securities be backed by companies of known worth and efficient, careful management.

Second, the yield, or the interest rate paid by the security, must be as large as possible, when the safety of principal is considered. For this reason bankers soon become expert in watching for good investments, and those investment houses having gilt edged securities for sale know they can find a ready market for them in the banks.

Third, a bank's investments must be liquid—that is, there must be a steady and constant market for them. The reason for this is apparent when it is remembered that the bank does not buy securities unless it has a surplus left over after its reserve requirements have been met and all of the legitimate demands for loans filled. If, however, the bank should invest all of this surplus in securities, such as real estate mortgages, for which there is no ready and active market, it might be convertible into cash almost instantly when the community demands either that its deposits be given back to it or that the bank lend more money for legitimate business purposes.

The necessity for the banks' having such investments, and the training which almost constant dealing in such securities gives to bank officers logically has led to the establishment of another of the great Service functions of the bank—that of investment counsel—which will be taken up in later articles of this series.

SON OF RED CHIEF
IS MADE LITT. D.

Indian Is Given Honorary Degree by University.

Washington.—Because of his scholarly contributions to the study of the Omaha Indians of Nebraska, his own people, Francis La Flesche, Smithsonian ethnologist, has received the honorary degree of doctor of letters from the University of Nebraska.

La Flesche was born in a tepee of the tribe on the plains of Nebraska. He was the son of Joseph La Flesche, principal chief of the Omahas, a far-seeing and intelligent man, who recognized the fact that the white man had come to stay and that proper relations between his people and the whites should be established. In keeping with this belief the chief sent his son, Francis, to the mission school established by the Presbyterian board of missions on the Missouri river, near what is now Sioux City, Iowa, in 1857.

Writes of School Days.

La Flesche has given a delightful picture of this school in a book called "The Middle Five," which he published in 1900. The book, of course, presents a unique setting, but it reveals a boy nature as recognizable to all as that set forth in "Tom Brown at Rugby."

At the Mission La Flesche learned the language of the English and the three "R's". He arrived at manhood as well equipped as most Americans in the culture of the Europeans. For nearly thirty years he worked for the Indian bureau of the United States. During that time he followed the courses at the national university law school in Washington, receiving a degree in 1892. At an early period La Flesche became possessed of the desire to preserve, in written form, the history of his people as it was known to them, their music, the poetry of their rituals and the meaning of their social and religious ceremonies. Accordingly, during the years of his service with the Indian bureau he collaborated with Miss Alice E. Fletcher of the Peabody museum, Harvard university, in the collection of material on his tribe.

The results of this vast work appeared in the twenty-seventh annual report of the bureau of American ethnology for the year 1905-1906, an extraordinarily rich account of the Omaha tribe.

Joined Smithsonian in 1910.

In 1910 La Flesche became officially associated with the bureau of American ethnology under the Smithsonian institution. He has continued to specialize on the culture of the Omahas and on a related people, the Osage. He is at present engaged in an attempt to rescue the language of the Osage from oblivion by making up a written vocabulary. Since the young people of the tribe are using English almost exclusively, the Osage tongue is rapidly dying out.

The Smithsonian considers as one of the principal functions of its bureau of ethnology this rescuing and publishing of the fast-vanishing aboriginal Indian culture for the benefit of future generations, to whom the Indian as a race will be but a subject of historical record. Thanks to his almost unique combination of personal knowledge and experience of and in Indian customs with his scientific training, La Flesche has materially assisted the institution in this rescue work.

British Royalty Keeps
Secret of Perfume

London.—One of the most carefully guarded secrets of the British royal family is the formula of a specially prepared perfume with which Buckingham palace is sprayed for the court presentations attended by men and women from all parts of the world.

The perfume is entirely original, suggestive of a tropical flower garden hidden away in the midst of a country setting which grows nothing but blossoms for miles around. The preparation has been used since the time of Queen Victoria, and its ingredients are known only to the king and queen and the manufacturers.

The scent was described by an American debutante as being the most delightful thing of its kind she had ever encountered. "It is just England," she said, "and there is nothing else like it in the world."

Use Steam Rollers
in War on June Bug

Stolp, Pomerania, Germany.—Steam rollers have been used to exterminate June bugs in Pomerania and Mecklenburg.

The pests appeared by the billion and even the school children were mobilized for the "June bug war." The children, on holiday leave from school collected the bugs in sacks, being paid one dollar a hundredweight. In the town of Deltsch alone 25 tons of the bugs were "bagged."

Immense damage has been caused by the bugs, and for miles all foliage is gone from the trees. The farmers complain that the plague is getting worse every year owing to the scarcity of artificial fertilizers. The insect breed in stable manure, which is now used almost exclusively instead of nitrate fertilizers.

His Finish

Rome, Italy.—Substitution of Irish potatoes for spaghetti in the national Italian diet is one of several radical innovations from which Premier Mussolini expects material results.

HARTMAN THEATER.

A perennial stage success, as much in demand as roses in June, is the rollicking farce, "Twin Beds," by Margaret Mayo and Salisbury Field, announced for production by the Hartman Stock company the week beginning July 26. Not in the remotest corner of the earth is there a community that hasn't at some time in the past ten years been enraptured by this farcical conceit. After a record-breaking run on Broadway, "Twin Beds" toured America for five years with never a suggestion of losing its popularity, and it has become a staple stock revival year in and year out, invariably at the insistent demand of theater patrons.

The Hartman company is particularly well equipped for the adequate presentation of this hilarious farce, and each of the favorites is destined for enthusiastic reception in the skillfully drawn characters of Miss Mayo and Mr. Field.

A most commendable feature of this offering has always been its absolute freedom from coarseness and its appeal to all that is mirthful and wholesome in everyday life. Everybody loves a lover, and in "Twin Beds" there is a brace of lovers that appear in the most awkward, but at the same time most laughable of situations. All the fun in this farce is of the homebrew variety and might be encountered in the best regulated household.

That every healthy human being loves to see himself characterized in the mimic world is a fact that has been demonstrated ever since the theater became a popular mirror of life, and it is this theory that has made "Twin Beds" the favorite play of the decade.

Soft Pork Caused by Improper Feed

Fats of Peanuts, Soy Beans, Rice and Corn Strikingly Softening.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

From the results obtained to date in the experimental work relating to the "soft-pork problem" it may be concluded, says the United States Department of Agriculture, that the wider the ratio of softening fats in the ration to the carbohydrates and protein from which synthetic fat is formed the firmer the carcass. It is evident that the fat formed from carbohydrates and protein is always materially harder than that derived from the fats of peanuts, soy beans, rice and corn, all of which are strikingly softening.

Mixture Favored.
A mixture of corn meal 5 parts and peanut meal 1 part fed with or without supplementary minerals to pigs starting at 80 pounds and making gains of about 100 pounds in 9 or 10 weeks produces, in the usual case, hard or medium-hard hogs. When the corn meal is reduced to 2 parts to 1 of peanut meal either soft or hard hogs may result. The feeder is cautioned not to use this combination unless he is willing to accept any consequences that may come from offering soft hogs to the market.

The progress made in the solution of the soft-pork problem is discussed in Department Bulletin 1407, just published by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the agricultural experiment stations of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas. Some conclusions regarding the feeding of various feeds in different combinations are listed in the bulletin. They do not, however, represent all of the results actually obtained during the progress of this work. Many other questions involved in the problem are being studied and a great mass of valuable data pertaining to them has already been obtained.

Progress Made in Solution.
The progress made in the solution of the problem in its more practical aspects has come through the definition and establishment of certain basic facts associated with the normal process of growth and fat formation in the hog. These facts pertain to the relative softening or hardening properties of the feeds concerned in the desired combinations; the influence of the stage of development or size at which a given ration is fed, and the influence of gains on the rations.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

DARROW AND CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

There are times when Clarence Darrow is clever; there are times when he is absurd. He was very much the latter in Washington when as a part of an argument against the death penalty he asserted that if capital punishment is good "we should make hangings and executions public, and children should be marched from the schools to the hanging places to learn all about it."

Operations for cancer and for various other ills to which the flesh is heir are good and beneficial, but we do not on that account take children to the hospitals or to the clinics to observe and study them, and the execution of a criminal is simply a major social operation.

Mr. Darrow also reiterates the old threadbare contention that capital punishment will not prevent murder. But in the next breath he himself indicates why it does not stop murdering in the United States when he says that only about 100 persons are hanged each year in this country. Place this total of executions against the thousands of homicides and it is easy to see why capital punishment is impotent. It isn't used. In Canada it is used, and it is noticeable that Mr. Darrow quotes no figures of crime and punishment in that country.—Detroit Free Press.

FALL OF FIVE FEET BREAKS MAN'S SPINE

West Jefferson Farmer Tumbles From Wagon As It Enters Barn—Death May Result.

Columbus, July 23.—Harvey Heath, 51, West Jefferson, is in a critical condition in Mt. Carmel Hospital with a fractured spine, a result of a five-foot fall off a wagon on the farm of J. H. Timmons near West Jefferson yesterday.

Mr. Heath was hauling baled hay. As the wagon entered the barn he slipped and fell backwards to the ground, five feet below, striking with his shoulders on the edge of the barn floor.

The fracture resulted in paralysis from the shoulders down, and his condition is dangerous, according to the attending physician. It is the second case of the kind to be treated at Mt. Carmel within two weeks. Frank McPherin, Ohio Bell Telephone Co. employe, is still in a critical condition as the result of a fall two weeks ago. He, too, has a fractured spine.

THE WORLD'S EXCHANGE COLUMN

The day has passed when a farmer took his produce to the general store and brought back cloth. But barter is at the basis of all our trade. We live in a state of swap. From faraway Brazil, in the pleasantly named town of Bello Horizonte, "Beautiful Skyline," comes a letter which reminds us that money is only a token and that world trade is still the exchanging of goods. Says the writer: "Today we are interested on wheat flour, for our macaroni factory, ground rock phosphate for fertilizer making and resin, caustic soda, potash for soap making, as well as barbed wire, cod fish, etc.

To export to your country, we have available all the time; castor seeds and castor oil, cottonseed meal and cotton-seed oil, coconuts, etc."

So Uncle Sam, if he has barbed wire and resin to sell, knows where he may trade them for castor oil and coconuts. And pie material and post-pie remedies may be had for Gloucester's extra salt cod.—Nation's Business.

Founded Oberlin College

Oberlin college was founded in 1833 by John J. Shipperd, then a missionary preacher in the little village of Elyria. He was but thirty years of age, and having recently read the life of the deceased Oberlin, he named the college after him. Eight years after Shipperd founded Oberlin, he went into the wilds of Michigan and founded the town and college of Olivet. He died at the age of forty-three.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Seeking Northwest Passage

Probably the earliest attempt to discover the Northwest passage and incidentally to define the location of the North pole was made by a Portuguese named Corte Real about 1500. In 1585 a company was formed in London called "The Fellowship for the Discovery of the Northwest Passage."

humanity's increase

It is estimated that there are over 40,000,000 births every year. Supposing that the children could be carried past a given point at the rate of twelve a minute, the one who was last would be seven years of age before he passed the counters.

THAD H. BROWN HAS RECORD AS VOTE GETTER

Candidate For Governor Has Made Good and is Popular With All Classes

To those who chronicle the current political history of the State of Ohio, the chapter which has been written by Secretary of State Thad Brown is known as one of the most brilliant and rapid careers of any man who has been in Ohio politics in the last quarter century. Altho scarcely forty years of age, Secretary Brown now stands as one of the leading Republican candidates for governor of Ohio. He has twice been chosen secretary of state, the second highest office in government. He is known best to those who observe politics closely as the man whose popularity with the voters caused him to carry the state of Ohio two years ago by the largest majority ever given any candidate for state office.

Mr. Brown was born on January 10 1887, on a farm in Lincoln township, Morrow county. He was educated in the rural schools of that county and completed his education at Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio State universities. He first entered politics as a college student when he became president of the Republican club of Ohio Wesleyan in 1908 and later occupied a similar post at Ohio State in 1910. He laid the ground work for his political career by teaching school in the rural districts for three years.

His first political office was as journal clerk of the Ohio House of Representatives in 1909 and 1910. With this experience to recommend him he was given the post of assistant secretary of the Ohio Constitutional convention when in 1912 our present state constitution was framed and adopted.

Four years later, Mr. Brown entered politics with a vengeance. He became assistant to the Western Campaign manager for the Republican national committee at Chicago. The World war service came along at this time and altho he was exempt from military service, he volunteered and served in the American army for 19 months during that period.

Back again in civilian clothes, he became interested in the affairs of the American Legion and was the second commander of Franklin Post, No. 1, at Columbus. He was recognized by the state organization of the Legion when in 1921 and 1922 he served as the state chairman of the Legion when in 1921 he served as the state chairman of the Legion's Americanism committee which did effective work among the foreigners of the state.

On February 1, 1920, he was appointed a member and chairman of the State Civil Service commission, which position he held until December 15, 1922. He first sought state office in August of that year, becoming the Republican party's nominee for secretary of state in a field of four candidates for the office. On November 7, 1922, he was elected to the office by a majority of 136,156. Two years later, he was again the nominee for this office and he was elected over his Democratic opponent by a majority of 521,640—the largest majority ever given any candidate for state office in the history of Ohio politics. He received 78,687 more votes than Vic Donahey, who was elected to a second term as governor by an unprecedented majority for gubernatorial candidates. Mr. Brown also received 52,128 more votes than the next highest Republican candidate for state office. In this accomplishment he broke three records and established a record for popularity which will remain a goal for candidates for many years to come.

When the votes were counted in 1924, his name was on the lips of many political observers who heralded him as the logical man to seek the governorship in 1926. Today he stands as the youngest candidate in a field of 12 seeking the Republican nomination, yet a man who has proved his popularity with the people of Ohio in previous achievements.

As secretary of state he has had charge of the state's election machinery and one of his principal accomplishments has been the speeding up of election work. As head of the state department of motor vehicles, he reorganized that department during his first term, providing a smooth working machine which collected and distributed the revenue from the sale of auto license tags more rapidly than it ever had been before. The efficiency of the corporation division, with which every large business concern in the state has contact, has been brought to a higher standard under his administration.

Look for the Best

Never argue with a man about his faults. He knows them much better than you do. Tell him, in kindness, about them, but be careful not to trespass upon his own preserves. Men do not require us to inform them of their unhappy memories. But they do need some one who will point them to a loftier ideal. To the mistakes of another it is kind to be blind and to look for the virtues.—Exchange.
